We have stepped up our metamorphosis to the New L'Oréal: more universal, more digital and more sustainable

How would you describe L'Oréal's performance in 2015?

Despite a slowdown in worldwide growth, the group delivered a solid performance. Sales growth was strong, supported by a positive currency effect. Three out of four Divisions outperformed their market. And we delivered good quality results.

Could you give us a few more details?

L'Oréal Luxe, Active Cosmetics and the Professional Products Division achieved sustained growth, further improving their worldwide positions in their respective markets. As for the Consumer Products Division, its growth picked up in the second half of 2015, enabling it to post an improvement on its 2014 performance. Importantly, we have taken all necessary steps to put the Division back on a market share gain track for 2016, by renewing the image of its brands, by seizing every opportunity in the fastest-growing consumer segments, such as make-up and natural haircare, by accelerating the pace of innovation and stepping up digital investments.

In terms of regions, we continued to expand on all continents. Growth was solid in Western Europe. In North America our performance increased quarter after quarter. ●●●

Growth trends in the New Markets were contrasted, ranging from difficulties in Brazil to very strong growth in countries like Turkey and India.

And in terms of profit?

Operating profit grew strongly by +12.8%, with operating margin reaching a record 17.4%. The year was also marked by a strong increase of +15.7% in earnings per share, at 6.18 euros, and in the dividend proposed to the Annual General Meeting. Once again, these results demonstrate the quality and robustness of our business model.

Last year you spoke about a more universal, more digital and more sustainable L'Oréal. How much progress has been made on these strategic transformations?

In our sector, beauty – and indeed in other industries – everything is changing at lightning speed: consumers, communications, distribution and competition. So we have stepped up our metamorphosis: the New L'Oréal is more universal, more digital and more sustainable.

These are profound transformations that require huge efforts from our teams, but this is quite simply essential to enable us to adapt and strengthen our leadership over the coming years. In fact, this is one of L'Oréal's greatest strengths: we never stop challenging and reinventing ourselves. At the same time, we remain true to our fundamentals: a clear mission statement, Beauty for All; a distinctive strategy, Universalisation; a commitment to Research and Innovation; a diversified portfolio of brands; a unique corporate culture; and humanistic values.

What does a "more universal L'Oréal" mean?

It means offering innovations perfectly adapted to local aspirations and needs. All over the world there is a powerful appetite for beauty. At the same time, people want products that are suitable for their skin and hair type, products that fulfil their desires, and match their culture and beauty routines. Thanks to our regional Research and Marketing hubs, now at full speed, our brands can be both aspirational worldwide, and totally relevant at local level. We will continue on the same path in 2016, with the opening of a new Research Centre in South Africa.

Jean-Paul Agon on a visit to Brazil.

And in digital, what progress have you made?

We made swift and substantial progress in 2015. Our online sales totalled 1.3 billion euros, an increase of +38%.

E-commerce is now equivalent to the group's number five country. In China e-commerce already accounts for more than 20% of our Consumer Products Division sales. And a quarter of our media spending now goes to digital communications.

Our digital presence reinforces our competitive edge and extends our leadership. It opens up thrilling new horizons for our industry in direct and personalised consumer relationships. Just look at the success of NYX Professional Makeup, our new digital native make-up brand, and how brands like REDKEN, LA ROCHE-POSAY and KIEHL'S have amplified their momentum through digital initiatives. It is up to us to surf as far and as fast as possible on the online and connection waves.

Our objective is to outperform the market and continue to deliver solid growth and profits

Jean-Paul Agon with Guy Ryder, ILO Director-General, after the signing of the ILO Global Business and Disability Network Charter.

And have you also stepped up your transformation into a more sustainable L'Oréal?

Yes, our social and environmental responsibility programme, "Sharing Beauty With All", is making good progress. You can find the details in our Progress Report, but here is just one example: our target of cutting greenhouse gas emissions by 60%. In 2015, the reduction was already 56% compared with 2005, while over the same period our production increased by 26%. So we are demonstrating what we have always believed: commitment to protecting the environment and economic performance can go hand in hand. We have also set ourselves another ambition for 2020: to be carbon-balanced, that is to offset our greenhouse gas emissions. We want to make our contribution to mitigating global warming by developing an innovative low-carbon business model.

And all our teams are fully focused on making these challenges their own. Furthermore, I decided that the Sustainable Development Department should report directly to me, because our commitment is transversal and strategic for all parts of the business, brands and countries.

L'Oréal is a pure player, and has been number one in its market for many years. Will you be able to keep on expanding in the future?

Of course we will. First, because beauty is a dynamic market, which will continue to expand, driven by demographic, economic and social trends. Just look how the make-up category has skyrocketed over the last few years. In 2015, it grew almost twice as fast as the market. Clearly this is partly linked to the powerful upsurge in digital communications, selfies and social networks, prompting everyone to be visible. And therefore to show themselves in their best light.

And future growth also lies in our own potential. In 2015, we celebrated 30 years of leadership. But we are a leader that still has huge potential. Our global market share is only 12.5%. In other words, we still have more than 87% of the market to aim for. I am sure that by offering products that are the best suited, the safest and the most effective, we will continue to attract more and more consumers. That is our ambition.

So you are confident about 2016?

Definitely. As ever, our objective is to outperform the market and continue to deliver solid growth and profits. And all the cards are in our hands. For the reasons I have just mentioned, but also because we are confident in our balanced business model, which creates value, and in our ability to grow our market shares.

One thing more: we feel proud and privileged to be part of a wonderful industry, helping people to feel good and self-confident. In short, to make life more beautiful!

The Board of Directors

A BALANCED AND HIGHLY COMMITTED BOARD

The composition of the Board reflects L'Oréal's shareholding structure, while guaranteeing the interests of all its shareholders. Alongside the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, there are therefore five directors from L'Oréal's major shareholders, seven independent directors and two directors representing the employees.

The diversity and complementarity of the directors' industrial, financial and entrepreneurial expertise mean they are equipped to quickly and thoroughly comprehend development challenges facing L'Oréal, the leader of a globalised and highly competitive cosmetics market in which constant innovation and adaptation are required.

Extremely committed and vigilant, and convinced that stringent governance creates value for the company, the directors always keep the company's long-term interests first in mind as they voice their opinions. The directors proactively and assiduously participate in the work of the Board and its Committees, which play an active role in preparing the Board's deliberations.

STRATEGY AT THE HEART OF DEBATES

Thanks to transparent and relevant information based on constructive exchanges with General Management, the Board forges its own clear and independent opinion of the group's development opportunities.

This comprehensive dialogue culminates in a shared strategic vision and provides General Management with the confidence needed to implement it.

In a bid to constantly improve its ability to provide strategic impetus, the Board conducts self-assessments of its methods and chooses the topics on which to focus its attention.

ETHICS AT THE HEART OF L'ORÉAL'S GOVERNANCE AND COMMITMENTS

The Board of Directors places great importance on the respect of L'Oréal's Ethical Principles – Integrity, Respect, Courage and Transparency – and more generally of the Code of Ethics. These commitments are the foundation, namely of the group's policies on compliance, responsible innovation, environmental stewardship, social and societal responsibility and philanthropy. In 2015, the Senior Vice-President and Chief Ethics Officer presented the ethics policy and the actions taken in this field and its results. The Board considers that these policies form an integral part of L'Oréal's growth model, and therefore supports their implementation and regularly measures the advances made.

The world of beauty in 2015

With growth at +3.9% ⁽¹⁾, the worldwide cosmetics market was stronger in 2015. With an estimated total of 203 billion euros, it is expanding steadily, driven by demographic trends in the New Markets, new needs linked to urbanisation, and new consumer desires fuelled by social networks. In this supply-driven market, spurred by innovation, L'Oréal is maintaining its leadership.

The major trends of the year

NEW MARKETS

India, South Africa and Turkey are performing well

In 2015, the New Markets generated more than two-thirds of beauty market growth⁽¹⁾. Despite the slowdown in China and Brazil, some growth-relay countries are fulfilling their promise, as is the case with India, South Africa and Turkey.

SECTORS

Luxury and dermocosmetics

Luxury remains the most dynamic sector at +5.7%⁽¹⁾, thanks in particular to e-commerce sales.

Dermocosmetics meanwhile continues to accelerate, driven by deep-rooted upward aspirations for both beauty and health in all parts of the world.

MAKE-UP

Lip colour leads the way

Driven by the selfie generation, make-up was the most dynamic category for the third year running, and proved to be a growth driver. The success of lip make-up was one of the 2015 highlights, with growth at +10% in the mass-market channel, and +16% in the selective channel⁽¹⁾.

Seizing the potential of every market

In a year marked by a worldwide economic slowdown and increased international volatility, particularly in some emerging countries, L'Oréal benefited from its balanced footprint across geographic Zones and continued to develop its positions in all regions of the world.

North America

+3.5% ⁽¹⁾

North America's growth pace strengthened throughout the year. URBAN DECAY, KIEHL'S and YVES SAINT LAURENT all posted double-digit growth. The Professional Products Division is recovering, driven by REDKEN. The Consumer Products Division is fuelled by make-up, with the breakthrough made by NYX Professional Makeup and the acceleration of MAYBELLINE NEW YORK.

Latin America

+4.6% ⁽¹⁾

The Active Cosmetics Division and L'Oréal Luxe posted double-digit growth, thanks to the good performances of SKINCEUTICALS, VICHY, LA ROCHE-POSAY, LANCÔME and KIEHL'S. If Brazil is excluded, Latin America achieved double-digit like-for-like growth. The environment in Brazil is continuing to hold back the Zone's overall sales.

(1) Like-for-like sales growth of cosmetics Divisions.

Western Europe

+2.3% ⁽¹⁾

Thanks to L'Oréal Luxe, and the Active Cosmetics and Professional Products Divisions, the group is outperforming the market, particularly in Southern Europe, and is recording strong growth in the United Kingdom and Germany. While the mass-market channel is still sluggish, the GARNIER brand is winning market share in haircare and skincare.

Eastern Europe

+9.8% ⁽¹⁾

The Consumer Products and Professional Products Divisions, as well as L'Oréal Luxe, all recorded double-digit growth, driven by Russia, Turkey and Ukraine. All Divisions are gaining market shares, particularly the Consumer Products Division in all categories: haircare, hair colour, skincare and deodorants.

Asia, Pacific

+4.7% ⁽¹⁾

Despite a difficult market in Hong Kong, growth at L'Oréal Luxe improved in the fourth quarter, driven by excellent performances in Japan. The Consumer Products Division benefited from good performances in India, Australia and Thailand. The Active Cosmetics Division posted strong growth, driven by LA ROCHE-POSAY.

Africa, Middle East

+12.1% ⁽¹⁾

Growth was particularly fast in Egypt, Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, where it topped 20%⁽¹⁾. South Africa remained solid. In a context of recent slowdown in several countries, all the Divisions made progress, with market share gains in their respective channels.

Seizing all the opportunities of a buoyant market

In 2015, the Division underperformed the market, but accelerated in the second half. In Western Europe, our sales have been stable in a fairly difficult market, and in North America, the Division returned to dynamic growth thanks to make-up. In the New Markets, all the Zones are growing, with strong contributions from Russia, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, India and Mexico.

MODERNISING THE GLOBAL BRANDS

The new “Make it happen” communications platform by MAYBELLINE NEW YORK has helped accelerate growth, especially in the United States. We have also modernised the L'ORÉAL PARIS brand by strengthening its expertise in every category. With the success of Ultra Doux, GARNIER reinforced its position in the fast-growing natural beauty trend.

TWO MAJOR STRATEGIC BETS

First of all, the extremely dynamic make-up segment: after strengthening our worldwide leadership in 2015⁽¹⁾, our ambition is to keep on outperforming this market, thanks to our perfectly complementary brands, a wide variety of innovations and the global roll-out of NYX Professional Makeup. Secondly, stepping up our haircare presence, thanks to Elvive by L'ORÉAL PARIS and Ultra Doux by GARNIER. We will also continue to innovate in the other categories.

AN OUTSTANDING DIGITAL OPPORTUNITY

E-commerce, highly developed in China, where it already accounts for more than 20% of our sales, is now accelerating in all Zones⁽²⁾. Social networks also give us a new way to support our brands, inspired by the NYX Professional Makeup model. Digital media also enables us to deliver services on a massive scale, like the Makeup Genius app. We are determined to win market share and gradually accelerate our growth, to ensure that we can outperform the market in a sustainable way.

All our Zones recorded increases, particularly Western Europe, up by +5.4%⁽¹⁾, way above the market figure. L'Oréal Luxe make-up was highly dynamic in 2015. In skincare, it was a great year for KIEHL'S. The fragrances category also progressed, thanks to the spectacular success of the last three major women's fragrances launches, "La Vie Est Belle", Si and Black Opium, and the solid sales of men's fragrances such as Polo Red and Acqua di Giò Profumo.

L'ORÉAL LUXE GROWTH-DRIVER BRANDS

2015 was the YVES SAINT LAURENT year, with growth of +18.4%⁽¹⁾. LANCÔME celebrated its 80th anniversary and performed strongly in Europe, China and the United States. The brand enhanced customer experience everywhere, fragrances posted double-digit growth and make-up is again picking up speed with the launch of Miracle Cushion, the first in a grand series of innovations. URBAN DECAY is one of the finest acquisitions made by L'Oréal Luxe in recent years. Great progress was achieved in our brand digital strategies, and there was strong growth and significant contribution from e-commerce, which already accounts for more than 8% of our sales⁽²⁾.

CHALLENGES FOR THE FUTURE

We want to strengthen our relationship with major worldwide distributors, as well as taking our direct-to-consumer efforts to the next level thanks to CRM⁽³⁾, e-commerce and digital targeting, to provide customers with even better service. We also need to reconcile the longer time frame of luxury – that of quality and brand heritage – with the shorter spans required by today's world. This will involve a policy of breakthrough innovations, a permanent challenge for our business.

The Yves Saint Laurent Beauty year

2015 gave new impetus to the beauty range of the most subversive Parisian couture brand. To attract growing numbers of young consumers, the brand changed its point-of-sale aesthetic in 2015, by focusing on minimalism and ultra-luxury codes. Thanks to its fragrances, particularly the continued success of Black Opium, and its trendsetting make-up initiatives, YVES SAINT LAURENT posted very strong growth at +18.4%⁽¹⁾.

THE MAKE-UP BOOM

Historically a strong category for the brand and further boosted by social networks, YVES SAINT LAURENT make-up posted spectacular growth in 2015, particularly in Asia. The brand is reasserting its leading position in lip make-up with Rouge Pur Couture and its new subversive marketing campaign; the worldwide success of the Vernis à Lèvres; and Volupté Tint-In-Oil, the first tinted lip oil and one of the top gloss launches of the first half. To further showcase colour in points-of-sale, the "YSL Color Showroom" counter concept was first launched in Japan.

Reigniting the professional beauty market

We once again strengthened our worldwide leadership⁽¹⁾ and accelerated our growth. In a worldwide market that remained fairly slow, Western Europe and the United States continued to grow by +1.8%⁽²⁾ and +4.1%⁽²⁾. Our two main categories, haircare and hair colour, enjoyed accelerated growth. We finalised the integration of DECLÉOR and CARITA, making the Division a global player on the professional beauty market.

DYNAMISM IN THE TWO MAIN CATEGORIES

Best in class in the digital field, REDKEN has become the Division's second biggest brand, and recorded strong growth in the United States. In 2015, the Division launched several technological innovations that contributed to accentuate the professional difference by meeting consumers' aspirations for personalised beauty services. In hair colour, the consolidation of our key pillars and the roll-out of transversal programmes to develop technical expertise gave the category a huge boost.

MODERNISING PROFESSIONAL BEAUTY

tion of professional beauty, to make it more attractive, more modern and more connected. The year was marked by the launch of Salon E-motion™, our hair salon transformation programme. We will continue to deploy our education programmes to convince more and more beauty professionals that we are their privileged partner.

CONFIDENT AND DETERMINED IN 2016

As the market leader⁽¹⁾, we are confident and determined to accelerate our growth. 2016 will once again be a great year of innovations thanks to our brands, services and customer experience in our salons. Our commitments to the industry, our education expertise and our brand portfolio mean that we can offer consumers all over the world unique and personalised beauty experiences.

A pioneer in dermocosmetics worldwide

In a dermocosmetics market that is still dynamic, the Active Cosmetics Division is once again demonstrating its worldwide leadership⁽¹⁾ with growth at +7.8%⁽²⁾. All the Zones and all the brands posted sales growth. Growth in Latin America, Brazil, Asia and Africa, Middle East was two-digit, an achievement matched on every continent by the LA ROCHE-POSAY brand. In 2015, we launched some strikingly successful innovations with high scientific added value, such as Neovadiol by VICHY and Lipikar Baume AP+ by LA ROCHE-POSAY.

THE CONSUMER QUEST FOR BEAUTY AND HEALTH

Our growth is driven by the increasing consumer interest in beauty and health, reflected in a desire for simplicity, safety and naturalness; a search for effective solutions to deal with skin problems linked to lifestyle, ageing and pollution; and a vision of health as a lifestyle choice dependent on expert brands.

STRONG COMMITMENT TO OUR HEALTHCARE PARTNERS

We are strengthening our partnership with healthcare professionals. The Global Summit of Pharmacy Leaders brought together 300 pharmacists, and pharmacy and drugstore chains, to offer training courses designed to develop business in pharmacies, and to help them to digitalise and provide advice and services.

SPECIALISED POINTS OF SALE AND DIGITAL ACCELERATION

The Division is also rolling out its multi-channel approach with its dermacenter concept, which embodies our modern vision of beauty and health, focused on providing a quality experience, services and advice from skincare experts. We are continuing our digital acceleration, both as a tool for increasing recommendations for our brands, and as a growth driver via e-commerce, which accounted for 17.1% of the Division's growth⁽³⁾.

The conviction that health is the future of beauty means we need to be even more respectful of the beauty and health of the planet and go the extra mile in the field of responsible development.

The group's advances

By drawing on the diversity of its teams and their wealth of expertise, the group once again this year continued its major strategic transformations to invent the beauty of tomorrow and build the New L'Oréal: more universal, more digital and more sustainable.

Innovating for personalised and responsible beauty

In 2015, we have gained a much better understanding of the effects of long UVA rays and pollution on the skin. This has led to the publication of scientific studies and the development of technologies to combat these effects. Another key issue is sustainable development. 65% of our new formulas have a positive environmental or social impact ⁽¹⁾. We have also developed new naturally-sourced active ingredients, such as quinoa bran extract, a high-performance peeling agent, and the powerful antioxidant baicaline.

LAURENT ATTAL

EXECUTIVE VICE-PRESIDENT
RESEARCH AND INNOVATION

OPEN, MULTI-HUB RESEARCH

We take advantage of our multi-hub organisation to capture the best of regional scientific ecosystems. In Japan, for example, we are working on optic particles and on pigments with top experts in these raw materials; in India, our Advanced Research teams are decrypting the ancestral knowledge of ayurvedic medicine to develop new active ingredients based on plant extracts.

LEVERAGING DIGITAL TECHNOLOGIES

We began our digital transformation more than 15 years ago. Today, it is paying off in terms of innovation capacity and differentiation. With the help of digital technologies, we are capitalising on a wealth of skin and hair knowledge accumulated over more than a century, and also developing cutting-edge methods, such as molecular and formula modelling. And with our advanced numerical simulations, we can create high-precision, customised products and services such as the first connected, flexible UV patch that instantly informs users about the quantity of UV rays they are receiving.

Drawing on nature's finest

The use of renewable raw materials, responsibly sourced and processed using the principles of green chemistry, is central to L'Oréal's commitments in terms of innovation. This approach inspired the project to produce an active exfoliant ingredient from quinoa seeds.

At first, L'Oréal researchers spotted the exfoliant properties of an extract of quinoa bran, a seed by-product whose added-value had not previously been exploited. Several varieties of quinoa from different geographical areas were evaluated before Bolivian quinoa real was selected. Its bran is rich in saponins and antioxidant polyphenols, molecules which boast significant cosmetic properties.

AN ENVIRONMENTALLY FRIENDLY EXTRACTION PROCESS

Producing this natural and renewable active ingredient was a twofold challenge: to develop a process that delivers a plant extract whose composition varies as little as possible, while complying with the principles of green chemistry. The Phytoreveal2™ process, developed by L'Oréal and optimised by Chimex, involves an extraction technique that is both efficient and sustainable, with the smallest possible environmental impact.

SUSTAINABLE, FAIR-TRADE SOURCING IN BOLIVIA

L'Oréal has set up a partnership for the sustainable sourcing of quinoa bran with two suppliers in Bolivia. This partnership provides lasting benefits for some 250 quinoa producers in the country's Uyuni and Potosí regions.

The steps used to obtain bran extract

1. Harvesting of quinoa real bran

2. Development of extraction process

3. Spray drying of extract

4. Once citric acid has been added, the quinoa bran extract takes on a lighter appearance and can be easily incorporated into formulas three Google search topics⁽¹⁾. Beauty tutorials have become a social phenomenon, and some are viewed hundreds of millions of times. Consumers now look for a multi-channel experience and relationship with their favourite brands, opening up new forms of direct contact between brands and their consumers.

AMPLIFYING THE EFFICIENCY OF OUR BUSINESS MODEL IN THE DIGITAL ERA

By adapting its marketing, media and distribution models to match the new opportunities opened up by the digital era, L'Oréal is reinforcing its competitive edge and its beauty market leadership. With a highly pragmatic “test-and-learn” approach, applied in hundreds of initiatives worldwide, the group is amassing practical know-how.

L'ORÉAL'S “LOVE BRANDS”

In 2015, L'Oréal's brands embraced digital on every front as they continued to establish themselves as digital “love brands”. The results are impressive: our brands are building closer customer relationships and maximising their engagement with consumers. Digital media also enable our teams to pick up trends instantly and transform them into product innovations.

Digital communications underpin our brands in key launches, in order for them to reach out to consumers and generate buzz.

The potential of e-commerce

L'Oréal is seizing the huge potential of this new distribution channel thanks to a strategy tailored to the specifics and different practices of each market, and to strong partnerships with e-commerce players.

In countries where digital lifestyles have really taken hold, L'Oréal has teamed up with the local e-commerce leaders. L'Oréal China, which led the way back in 2010 with the first L'ORÉAL PARIS boutique on the Tmall website, has also been working with the Alibaba website since 2013. In the United States, L'Oréal Luxe makes roughly 15% of its sales via e-commerce⁽¹⁾, using both distributor partners and brand sites. In Russia, the group identified the Ozon website as a strategic player in local e-commerce, and worked together on a plan to launch the cosmetics category.

TARGETED MARKETING FOR GREATER EFFICIENCY

Understand how L'Oréal's brands use precision advertising.

Combining our expertise to satisfy our customers

2015 was a very good year for L'Oréal Operations⁽¹⁾, which delivered higher performance levels in all fields of responsibility. The ongoing modernisation in 2015 of our supply chain⁽²⁾, for example, perfectly illustrates our imperatives of agility, competitiveness and reliability in all distribution channels, especially in deep trade⁽³⁾ and e-commerce, which are two of our key challenges.

DECOUPLING CO₂ EMISSIONS FROM GROWTH

In environmental matters too, 2015 was an exceptional year. We have reduced CO₂ emissions from our factories by 56%⁽⁴⁾ since 2005, while production grew by 26% over the same period. Nine of our factories and distribution centres have reached carbon neutrality, and L'Oréal has been recognised as a leader in fighting climate change⁽⁵⁾. These achievements illustrate our ability to decouple business growth from the consumption of resources; they also reflect the Operations teams' commitment to ensuring the success of the group's strategic “Sharing Beauty With All” programme.

SATISFYING CONSUMERS AND DISTRIBUTOR CUSTOMERS

The whole of our chain of expertise, from “design&develop” to distribution, by way of sourcing and manufacturing, is directed transversally towards a single decisive challenge: to satisfy increasingly demanding consumers and distributor customers, eager for more personalisation, more digital initiatives and more responsiveness. Our mission: to enable all the group's brands to provide consumers, wherever they are worldwide, with the most advanced cosmetics solutions for a maximum perceived value.

Supply chain⁽¹⁾ expertise for the global roll-out of Urban Decay

Operations play a key role in integrating and rolling out acquisitions within the L'Oréal group. The internationalisation of URBAN DECAY is an excellent example. To support the worldwide development of this American brand, the supply chain teams shared skills and information systems, particularly in the forecast field. BREAKTHROUGH IN WORKING PRACTICES

Human Relations is on the front line of the group's digitalisation process. We have set up a special unit to recruit people with key digital profiles, especially to bring in new expertise that we did not have in-house. Five years ago we had 200 expert profiles; in 2015, this figure rose to more than 1,000. We have set up a vast training plan to step up digital integration at all levels of the company. Digital is also changing our working practices. Today, it is our No.1 recruitment channel, and it helps us convey our employer promise in a way that is transparent, direct and international. It is helping to spread a new mindset through the company, drawing on important aspects of L'Oréal's corporate culture.

L'Oréal "Share & Care": objectives achieved

In 2013, L'Oréal made a commitment that by 2015 its employees would benefit from the best practices in social benefits. By the end of 2015, the main components of the programme had been rolled out in all countries with L'Oréal subsidiaries⁽¹⁾:

- Protection in the event of death or permanent total disability, with payment of at least 24 months' salary⁽²⁾;
- Reimbursement of at least 75% of medical costs for major risks;
- Paternity leave of at least three days on full pay;
- Maternity leave of a minimum of 14 weeks on full pay⁽²⁾;
- Flexible working time arrangements.

INITIATIVES FOR QUALITY OF LIFE IN THE WORKPLACE

Contributing to the professional and personal fulfilment of all employees by offering them an empowering and enriching work environment: this is the "Enjoy" pillar of the "Share & Care" programme. Each country is encouraged to develop its own initiatives to suit local needs.

COMMUNICATIONS SPUR COMMITMENT

For more than 100 years, L'Oréal has been a company underpinned by values. It is passionate for Beauty, innovative, entrepreneurial, open-minded, driven by excellence, and responsible, and these values are shared by all its employees worldwide. The Communications teams actively foster employee commitment inside the company throughout the year, and with emblematic initiatives such as Citizen Day. This major annual event has a powerful team-building effect, and in 2015 brought together more than 25,000 employees. The group also strives to enrich its relationships with all its stakeholders, to generate increasing awareness of its expertise and commitments, which are valuable assets in the continuing process of building tomorrow's L'Oréal.

“The group is enriching its relationships with all its stakeholders, to raise awareness of its expertise and commitments”

ENVIRONMENTAL AND SOCIETAL RESPONSIBILITY DRIVE PERFORMANCE

In 2015, by attending COP21, L'Oréal reaffirmed that a large company can play a major role in protecting the environment while maintaining high performance. Corporate social responsibility and sustainability issues provide the group with opportunities to reinvent its innovation and production model, to communicate with its consumers and partners, and to share its growth with them. The “Sharing Beauty With All” programme – the strategic mainstay of our corporate citizenship commitments – fully incorporates sustainable development into L'Oréal's strategy, where it supports our long-term economic and financial performance.

Citizen Day: a worldwide commitment

Created six years ago, Citizen Day is a day of solidarity that brings together thousands of L'Oréal employees worldwide, who are eager to get involved in volunteer initiatives. In 2015 the event generated unprecedented enthusiasm, with employees contributing some 200,000 volunteer hours.

STRONGER COMMITMENT, YEAR AFTER YEAR

The event takes different forms in all the countries in which the group operates, with local initiatives. For example, in China employees helped underprivileged communities, and in Turkey they volunteered with an association that helps young people with autism.

Building trust and supporting growth

SUPPORTING L'ORÉAL'S SUSTAINABLE GROWTH

2015 was another year of growth in sales, results and profitability. Working closely with the group's different entities, the administration, controlling and finance teams help to build and foster a solid relationship of trust that is essential for L'Oréal's sustainable growth. This trust is based on constant vigilance, fairness, transparency, professionalism and an ethical approach in our relations with all stakeholders. This year once again, we strongly contributed to the economic and financial management of L'Oréal's businesses, the identification of risks and opportunities, and the optimisation of resource allocation.

CHRISTIAN MULLIEZ

EXECUTIVE VICE-PRESIDENT
CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

BUILDING ON TRUST

The relationship of trust between L'Oréal and all its stakeholders is maintained through constant vigilance. The group's financial health depends on closely monitoring cash flow and making sure that financing is secure. With suppliers and customers, the relationship of trust is based on professionalism and ethical behaviour in all exchanges. As for shareholders and investors, the financial communications team maintains a close relationship with them by welcoming dialogue and providing fair and transparent information about the group's activities. The teams work to assist the Board of Directors and its Committees, striving to maintain the highest quality standards.

“ We help to build a solid relationship of trust that is essential for L'Oréal's sustainable growth ”

Internal control and risk management

The internal control system contributes to L'Oréal's development by ensuring compliance with laws, the application of the group's standards and the reliability of financial and non-financial information, together with the efficiency and simplicity of internal processes. By enabling L'Oréal to anticipate, prevent and manage its risks more effectively, the system provides support for decision-making and action. Since 2012, the network of managers has grown significantly to more than 110 today, covering almost all the countries in which the group operates.
